

Three Little Birds is a family owned and operated mostly second-hand book dealership established in 1999.

Over the past ten years, we have expanded our sidelines to include a local organic food co-op and consultation services in gardening, small scale urban farming and beekeeping.

View our second hand book inventory at www.threelittlebirdsbooks.com
To talk books, or other topics, reach us at: threeltbirds@juno.com or 856-848-3652

Shipping Rates and Deadlines:

Priority Mail: $5.00

Order deadline: December 22

Regular Mail: $3.00

Order Deadline: December 19

Local orders can be placed through December 24, 2008. Call or email to arrange pick up or delivery.

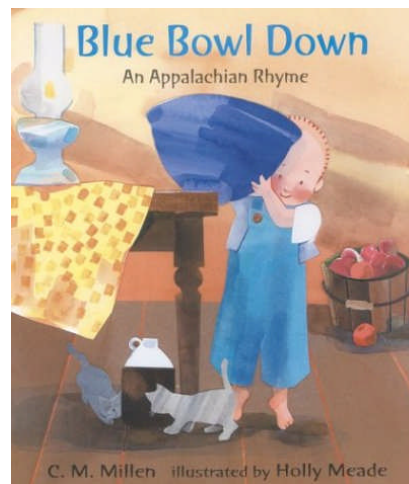

SPECIAL PURCHASE!!

First Edition, Autographed

$15.00

A wonderful chance to give an heirloom gift to your favorite little one.

Blue Bowl Down: An Appalachian Rhyme by C.M. Millen and Illustrated by Holly Meade shares the old-fashioned tradition of evening bread baking in a lilting lullaby accompanied by softly colored collage-style illustrations. A really fun book to share at bedtime or anytime!

Hardcover. Autographed. $15.00

Three Little Birds

www.threelittlebirdsbooks.com
threeltbirds@juno.com
856-848-3652
Established 1999
Woodbury, NJ

Three Little Birds

Holiday Sale

Books... for Reading

Lapham Rising

$10.00

The Washington Post describes Lapham Rising as a “witty rant” - I think you’ll agree. Join Harry March and his talking dog in the Hamptons as they plot to thwart their new neighbor from building his 36K square foot mansion. Revenge is sweet.

By Roger Rosenblatt. Hardback. 2007.

The Book of Lost Things

$8.00

A real book-lover’s book! 12-year-old David has lost his mother and now his books are speaking to him. They lure him to a portal where he begins a quest in a land of fairy tale beasts and monsters. John Connolly plays on our most primal fears in this eerie blend of coming-of-age story and fantasy.

By John Connolly. Paperback. 2007.

The Contrarians

$10.00

Things go sour when Chris Kelch, investment bank VP, makes an unprofessional remark after he gets news that his featured stock has dropped and then shows up in a magazine article that does not think kindly of him—or his company. Rising stars can fall fast—and they do.

By Gary Sernovitz. Hardback. 2003

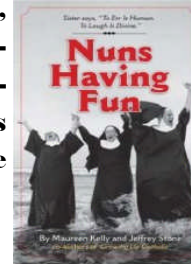

Books... for Giving

Nuns Having Fun

$6.00

The title says it all on this one! From the authors of Growing Up Catholic, here are 125 pictures of nuns skating, at the bar, at the slots, and even skeet shooting. All of the black and white images are from the 1950s and 60s and are accompanied by the lore and legends that surround nuns.

By Maureen Kelly & Jeff Stone. Paperback. 2008.

Real Men Cook

$10.00

It’s true! Real men DO cook! Compiled here are over 100 recipes from Real Men Cook volunteers (an organization that raises money for groups such as the Girls and Boys Clubs of America) as well as their thoughts on cooking, family and community. Foreword by then-Senator Barack Obama.

By K. Kofi Moyo. Paperback. 2006.

And The Train Goes...

$12.00

“Clickerty-clack, clickerty-clack.” Children will love to imitate all the noises in this fun story about a locomotive train ride. The 1960’s feel illustrations are detailed and bright giving kids lots to look at and enjoy.

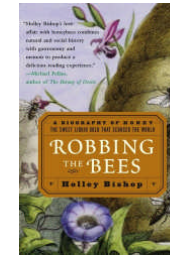

Illus. by William Bee. Hardback. 2007

Books...for Buzzing

Robbing the Bees

$8.00

This is the book that convinced us to become beekeepers. Although the subtitle on this is “A Biography of Honey”, it is truly a book about bees—their history, legends, folklore, myth, mystery and even the actual science about them. Wonderfully readable.

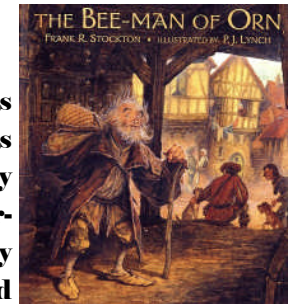

By Holley Bishop. Paperback. 2006.

The Bee-Man of Orn

$12.00

Frank Stockton’s classic fairy tale is back in a beautifully illustrated large format edition. A lovely book for child and adult, Stockton’s tale reminds us to be who we really are.

Illus. by P.J. Lynch. Hardcover. 2004.

Following the Bloom

$8.00

Here’s a job they didn’t teach you about in school: migratory beekeeping. Take a trip with those who drive beehives cross-country in the name of pollination and honey. Bees and truckers make it an interesting ride—and read!

By Douglas Whynott. Paperback. 2004.